Nora and the Paper-Star
Map

The night before the treasure hunt, the inventor sighed. “My map is lost!” “I’ll help find it,” said Nora.

RIVERSTONE
LIBRARY
Then Nora spotted a tiny paper star. “The inventor put these along the route!” she said. “I can follow them.”

Past the bench and around the bushes, Nora followed star after star. When the trail turned tricky, she kept going.

At the last star, Nora found a tucked-away work spot. There was the map—left beside the pencils!

Nora carried the map carefully back. “You found it!” said the inventor. “Thank you, Nora!”

The treasure hunt began! Paper stars twinkled along the paths, and Nora felt proud. Her small help had brought everyone together.